

F. X. Colgan, McSherrystown, Is Elected Chairman of Democrats in Adams County

Choice of Associate Judge as New Leader Follows Stormy Re-organization Meeting in Court House, Saturday.

COMMITTEEMEN CLASH OVER BY-LAW AMENDMENT; 4 NAMES ON BALLOT

F. X. Colgan, of McSherrystown, one of Adams county's two associate judges, was elected chairman of the Adams county democratic committee at a stormy re-organization meeting at the court house, Saturday afternoon.

He succeeds James C. Cole, Buchanan Valley, who held the position for the past six years.

Storm clouds gathered after the first ballot, in which none of four candidates secured a majority of the votes cast, was taken.

George M. Neely, of Fairfield, secretary of the committee under Cole, informed the committeemen that the by-laws provided that only a member of the committee was eligible for election as chairman.

92 Committeemen Present

Colgan, who is not a member of the county committee and at whom Neely's remarks were indirectly aimed, immediately took the floor and called the secretary's attention to an amendment to the by-laws, passed six years ago which provided that any democrat could be elected to the chairmanship.

"I resent the implication that I am not a legal candidate for the chairmanship," Colgan said, sitting down amid a round of applause.

Chairman Cole called the meeting to order at 2:15 o'clock. In opening remarks, Cole said he always tried to be "on the level" with all members of the party during his incumbency. "I have made many sacrifices. I couldn't give everyone who asked a job. I have been blamed for many things that I was powerless to prevent. I hope harmony will result from this meeting, regardless of who the chairman may be."

After the roll call, showing 92 committeemen in attendance, L. U. Collins, of Mt. Joy township, was elected temporary chairman of the meeting.

Four Candidates Are Nominated

Nominations for chairman were then called for. Colgan was the first candidate nominated. His proposer was Charles Groff, Conewago township. The name of Chairman Cole was then placed in nomination by Allen Hartman, of Franklin township, followed by that of George M. Neely, Fairfield, nominated by P. A. T. Bower, Table Rock, and A. B. Plank, Gettysburg, nominated by Victor Crouse, Littlestown.

Collins then appointed C. F. Palmer, Germany township; Clarence Schwartz, Littlestown, and Norman J. Kins, Littlestown, as tellers.

On the first ballot, Colgan received 43 votes; Cole, 25; Neely, 8, and Plank, 16. Applause greeted the result.

Then the fireworks started, with Neely setting the spark. "I am sorry to say that when democrats are in right of victory they usually have a family quarrel," Neely said. "With one of the candidates not a member of the county committee, this election is illegal."

Rules In Favor of Non-Member

After reading a section of the by-laws which provides for the election of the county chairman from the ranks of the committee members, Neely announced that he withdrew his candidacy for chairman.

Chairman Collins was "in a spot." He scarcely knew which way to turn, and admitted he was in a quandary. "I don't want to decide this question myself," he said, and then called for a conference of the executive committee.

The executive committee, after a brief conference, announced that the by-laws should stand, but Chairman Collins reversed the committee and announced that inasmuch as an amendment to the by-laws, permitting the committee to elect a non-member as chairman, had been passed six years ago, the candidacy of Colgan was entirely proper and legal.

Colgan Elected On Second Ballot

After the temporary chairman ruled that Colgan's name should be allowed to stand, Chairman Cole announced his withdrawal as a candidate, and called upon his supporters to vote for Plank.

On the second ballot, Colgan received 54 votes and Plank was accorded 36. Prolonged applause followed the announcement of the result.

The new chairman then took charge of the meeting. "We can succeed this fall if we will work together in a spirit of peace and harmony," Colgan said in taking over the reins. "I will give my best to the campaign and hope that all of you will support me. What has transpired here this afternoon is forgotten as far as I am concerned. I will not be ruled by any group. I stand for clean politics and will make every effort to keep the coming campaign clean."

Laborer, 49, Killed by Car While Walking on Road in Midway Sunday Morning

Actor Killed

Hal Skelly, 42, veteran stage and screen actor, was killed instantly when a truck which he was driving was struck by a train at West Cornwall, Connecticut. His last play closed on Broadway two weeks ago. (Associated Press Photo)

There were no eyewitnesses to the fatal accident, Corporal Stroh said, although Eugene Smith, of McSherrystown, who was traveling toward Hanover, accompanied by Felix V. Topper, Jr., McSherrystown, and two Hanover girls, Misses Margaret Frey and Mabel Sherman, came upon the scene a few seconds after the accident.

Harold Wise, Third street, who was walking on the highway about 100 feet ahead of Small, told Corporal Stroh he was attracted by the sound of brakes being applied, and looked around. By the time he looked, however, the pedestrian had been struck.

Coroner's Inquest This Week

Small was breathing when Gebhart and Topper placed the injured man in the former's machine and started for the Hanover General hospital. An examination at the hospital, however, revealed that Small was dead, having suffered a fractured skull, a broken left ankle and numerous cuts and contusions.

The shoe on Small's right foot was knocked off by the impact and was found 25 feet from the body.

Dr. Edgar A. Miller, Adams county coroner, was notified and conducted a preliminary investigation. He announced that an inquest would be held later in the week.

The left front headlight visor and the left horn, the radiator shelf and the hood of Gebhart's car were damaged by the impact.

Mrs. Insull, Chicago Bound, Rides In Second-Class Coach to Paris

Paris, June 18 (AP).—Mrs. Samuel Insull, riding in a second-class coach, returned from Athens Sunday on her way back to Chicago after a voluntary two-year exile in Europe.

She said she is happy at the prospect of resuming her place beside her husband, extradited from Turkey to face charges growing out of the collapse of his vast mid-western utilities enterprises.

The vicissitudes of the long flight from Chicago courts apparently necessitated sharp reduction of the family expenditures. She took rooms in a modest hotel pending departure for America.

Mrs. Insull plans to sail on the Olympic Wednesday. But her health is not robust, and if an affliction from which she has been suffering requires treatment here she may postpone leaving until the Majestic sails June 28. Her confidence in her husband remains unshaken, and she said that had he acted on his own impulses he would have returned voluntarily to the United States to fight charges against him.

"I believe my husband and son are honest, and I am sure they will convince others they are," Mrs. Insull said.

"Mr. Insull would have gone back much sooner if he had had his own way," she continued, intimating the long flight had been undertaken on the advice of other persons.

"I know he is happy to be back," she added. "He has found that he still has friends in Chicago. I shall be happy to see him, my son and my grandson."

Mrs. Insull was met here by Mme. Zahra Lillie Koukoumjoglou, who had befriended the Insulls at Athens.

WESTMINSTER FACTORY BURNS

Firemen Battle $85,000 Fertilizer and Feed Company Blaze Early Sunday.

Westminster, Md., June 18 (AP).—The large factory of the Westminster Fertilizer and Feed company was destroyed by fire of an undetermined origin early Sunday. The loss was estimated at $85,000, according to the police.

Before the flames were brought under control after a three-hour battle by the Westminster fire company, the nearby home of Doctor Jones and the buildings of the Smith & Reifsnider Lumber company also caught fire. These blazes were extinguished with slight damage.

A strong wind scattered the sparks and embers for a half mile from the burning building and for a time threatened a large section of the town.

The fertilizer plant was located along the tracks of the Western Maryland railway. It was of wooden construction, two stories tall and occupied nearly an entire block. It had been in operation steadily up until the time of the fire.

The blaze was discovered about 3:30 a. m. by a watchman for Thomas Bennett & Hunter, contractors, located across the railroad tracks. An alarm was immediately sounded, but the flames had gained considerable headway before the fire company arrived.

Several freight cars, on a siding next to the fertilizer plant, were badly damaged by the flames.

Mrs. Dall Takes Up Residence In Nevada Mountain Resort

Cal-Neva, Nevada, June 18 (AP).—A house of logs overlooking a mountain lake became the temporary home Sunday of Mrs. Anna Roosevelt Dall, daughter of the president, as she began a six weeks' stay in Nevada which is expected to end in her divorce next month from Curtis B. Dall, New York broker.

Watched over by a secret service agent, Mrs. Dall and her two children, Sissie and Buzze, were rushed to this mountain resort by motor car from Truckee, California, where early Sunday afternoon they left the transcontinental train that had carried them westward from Washington.

Under Nevada laws she will be eligible to file suit for divorce six weeks from Sunday. Just where she will begin the action has not been disclosed. Mrs. Dall's brother, Elliott, and his wife were divorced a year ago at Minden, about eighty miles from here, in the picturesque Carson Valley.

Samuel Platt, attorney for Mrs. Dall, declined to discuss particulars of the case.

Cal-Neva is a gathering place for the elite among Nevada divorce-seekers. While many motor here from Reno to enjoy the mountain scenery around Lake Tahoe and the festivities in Cal-Neva lodge, others establish their temporary residences here and spend their six weeks far from the more populous centers.

Mrs. Dall's log home is not far from the lodge owned by a Mrs. Ballin. It is not a pretentious place, but like all lake homes is solidly built and apparently large enough to meet all the Dall family requirements.

5 Rescued From Car On Fire in Carlisle

Carlisle, June 18.—Five women had a narrow escape from death Sunday afternoon when their disabled automobile was suddenly enveloped in flames, in Pitt street, Carlisle.

Residents of the neighborhood came to their assistance and pulled them from the blazing car. One of the rescuers suffered burns.

The women, all from Fayette county, were riding in North Pitt street, Carlisle, when the left rear wheel of the car flew off. Sparks caused by the axle dragging on the paving are believed to have set fire to the gasoline tank and within a few seconds, the entire rear end of the machine was enveloped in flames.

The women were returning to Uniontown, having attended a convention of business and professional women at Eagle's Mere.

CONGRESS' END BELIEVED NEAR

Pressure for Adjournment Makes Headway; President Signs Road Bill.

Washington, June 18 (AP).—Democratic pressure for adjournment of congress by nightfall made headway today.

The senate voted 41 to 39 to take up the $2,000,000,000 general relief appropriation bill as agreed upon by conferees of the two branches.

Senate La Follette, republican, Wisconsin, had asked instead that the bill for the board to mediate rail labor disputes be given priority, but that lost to the democratic leadership by the narrow margin.

After the expected senate acceptance of the appropriation measure action was to be asked by Senator Robinson, the democratic leader, on the bill to make it easier to borrow to build and remodel homes.

Should long filibuster speeches intervene however, these plans could easily go awry.

President Roosevelt meanwhile studied bills that just arrived at the white house, signing one authorizing $522,000,000 for road construction over a 3-year span.

Season's First Air Show Here, Sunday

The final arrangements have been completed for the season's first air show at the Gettysburg airport, Sunday, June 24. The committee in charge has procured an array of talent that would do justice to a city much larger than Gettysburg. Several of the events have yet to be witnessed in this part of the east.

Loud speakers will be installed for the benefit of the spectators, so that all maneuvers can be properly described. Ample parking facilities are available at no charge and a small admission will tend to compensate the fliers and aid the Elks' convention fund. Many of the pilots will arrive from distant cities with the latest aircraft to show what really can be done with an airplane.

Society will be represented by two members of the famous Dupont family, of Delaware, in the persons of Dick Morgan and Paul Dupont. Both of these men have fast ships and Mr. Morgan has established an enviable record as a stunt flier. One of his breath-taking stunts is upside down flying.

There will be parachute jumps. One jumper in particular will fall almost three miles before opening his parachute. There is also a possibility of a squadron of service ships leing on the field, toward which the committee is now working. The field is being put in shape for a day of real thrills.

Two hundred men were at work in the department.

One man was killed in another accident at the Ford plant this morning. He was caught in a conveyor belt.

Liquor Law Clinic Is Held in Chicago

Chicago, June 18 (AP).—What's right—and wrong—with the laws that have governed liquor since repeal is to be the study of representatives of 23 states who began gathering today for a national liquor control conference.

A clinical dissection of state and national drinking regulations and the sale of liquor and its manufacture is the purpose of the conference, called by Governor Henry Horner to meet at the Century of Progress exposition.

After the dissection, the consultants hope to reach some diagnosis of ills they may discover to be existent since repeal, and perhaps agree upon a cure.

Because Cleason H. Croner, Gettysburg, has complied with its insurance requirements, the public service commission announces it has reinstated his certificate of public convenience to operate trucks for hire. Croner's certificate some time ago had been suspended for failure to comply with the insurance requirements.

The Ladies' Auxiliary will hold its state convention at the same time. Mrs. Florence Anderson, of Philadelphia, is president.

The encampment will open with a joint business session Thursday for addresses of welcome and responses. Separate meetings of the two organizations will be held throughout Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

tions of the story about which we speak.

"It is manifested in even a worse form when reverses in fortune overtake those who aforesaid have assisted and befriended us. The past reveals many instances of this kind. Job, in the midst of his suffering and distress cries out, 'My kinsfolk and acquaintance have failed me and my familiar friends have forgotten me. They that dwell in my house and my maids count me for a stranger. I am an alien in their sight.' And the Psalmist declared 'I am forgotten as a dead man out of mind.'

"Even toward parents this sin is often displayed. Who does not remember poor, old, broken-hearted Lear cry out from the depths of his soul's anguish. 'How sharper than a serpent's tooth it is, to have a thankless child.' Yes, homes have been saddened and gray hairs brought in sorrow to the grave by this awful sin.

"But finally, it reveals itself in blackest form in man's ingratitude to his maker and to his redeemer. Think of God in nature. The beautiful world in which we live. How nature in its bounty makes possible our comfort and happiness. The regularity of the recurring seasons, day and night, food, drink, raiment. Yet in the midst of all God's bounties, we like the old Israelite, grumble at the least interruption in the supply of his bounties and our hearts are ungrateful.

"But above all when Jesus Christ, God's only begotten son, came to earth to manifest the Father's love and give to all created intelligences an example of that love by bearing our sins and griefs, going as He did the way of the cross to save us, and make possible our salvation so that we could have a conscious sense of His forgiveness and look up into the very face of God and call Him Abba Father. Yet with all this suffering and death for us we turn away and keep on sinning until too late we realize that our spirit of ingratitude has brought our ruin. Would that men would face, before it is too late, the sinful record so that they might find peace by believing and trusting Him."

SWIMMER REVIVED

Lancaster, June 18 (AP).—Edward S. Ruof, 33, rescued from a swimming pool Sunday, was revived at a hospital after two life guards had failed to restore consciousness in forty-five minutes of work.

Hospital physicians said his condition was serious.

Ruof went down in six feet of water. A companion, Lester P. Hivner, of York county, noticed his struggles and went to his rescue.

New York, June 18 (AP).—The disappearance of Louise Krist, 18, an attractive brunette, after she attended a gathering of poets in Greenwich Village two weeks ago, was reported to police Sunday.

Murder at MOCKING HOUSE

by Walter C. Brown

SYNOPSIS: Sergeant Harper just has explained to Pierre Dufresne that the powerful politician's alibi on the night when two men were murdered in his house is worth nothing at all. Harper himself has escaped from the locked and guarded apartment that supposedly held Dufresne while the murders were taking place. Dufresne maintains a scornful attitude.

Chapter 47 AGAIN DEATH

"You appear to be armed at all points, Harper. It's a very pretty yarn. You've almost convinced me of its truth."

"We've had all these pieces of evidence," the detective continued calmly, "but we couldn't get them into a pattern. After we had a talk with Ellen Becker we began to under-stand."

Pierre Dufresne jerked as though he felt a knife at his ribs. "Ellen Becker?" he echoed faintly.

"Yes, and one again I can tell you something you didn't know before. Your bribes to her were a waste of money. She had already put her silence in pawn—elsewhere!"

Dufresne leaped up, his face working, his eyes glittering in stark rage. He gripped the detective's shoulder. "My wife?" he choked.

Harper nodded. "Ellen Becker has been taking money from both of you. When she confessed about those notes in the sand, it became obvious how you must have planned to catch that man in your house and murder him. But you have hopelessly prejudiced your case by being secret and subtle, with the result that a perfectly innocent man lost his life as a result. That part is not so easy to forgive."

Dufresne faced the detective, "Harper," he exploded, "what would you say if I denied everything, completely and absolutely?"

"You may deny all you like, but you'll find it pretty hard to explain away Ellen Becker's evidence, or those letters. Then there's the presence of the master-key on your ring, and the murder gun, first hidden in your room. Besides, there is any amount of corroborative evidence."

"But didn't you tell me you had two suspects on your list? Or were you lying to try to trap me?"

"Not exactly that, Mr. Dufresne," Harper threw his bombshell. "Mrs. Dufresne's actions are under equal scrutiny. She is known to have been away from Mrs. Morlock's house during that mysterious fire. She has refused to give any explanation or account for her movements."

Dufresne halted in his tracks, a peculiar intension coming into his eyes, as though looking at something far away.

"I suppose you threatened my wife with arrest?"

"I am giving her every chance to reconsider her decision," Harper replied, "but continued refusal to answer my questions will force my hand."

Pierre Dufresne threw back his head and burst into harsh, jarring laughter. "Are you mad?" he cried. "No one in this house is ever going to stand trial for murder."

"The prize quandary of all time!" Sergeant Stephen Harper, still clad in pajamas, was shaving himself. He had just started the razor down the by his bed began to ring. In a moment of his face when the telephone ment a voice he did not recognize was pouring out an excited tale.

"Wait a minute. . . Stop shouting. I'm not deaf," Harper protested. "Who is it? . . . O'Connor? . . . at Dufresne's. . . Yes. . . Who? . . . Donaghy, the chauffeur? . . . Yes, yes, go on. . . Whitmore found him? . . . You've kept the others away? That's the stuff, O'Connor! Hold everything! I'll come right out!"

Harper sat down on the edge of the bed.

Joseph Donaghy, the chauffeur, a suicide in his living quarters over the Dufresne garage! And there was a letter he had written—an open letter explaining his action. So this was the end of the trail for that cocky young fellow.

He hurriedly finished shaving, dressed, and was ready at the door when the car from the homicide bureau stopped to pick him up. In the back seat were the fingerprint man, a police surgeon, and the official photographer, his two black boxes of equipment wedged between his knees.

The snow-laden streets made for slow driving but there was not much conversation exchanged on the run up to Powhatan Terrace.

The uniformed policeman on guard at the front door to the Dufresne house looked alert and excited when he saw the official group coming up the path. "Plenty of excitement in there this morning, sergeant!" he volunteered.

The four men from headquarters walked into the hall. They heard voices coming from the rear of the house and found an excited group back in the kitchen. A policeman had taken his stand at the back door and Andrews and the two Whitmores were holding a lively discussion with him.

The appearance of Sergeant Harper and his party choked off this talk. The detective greeted them briefly, then turned to the policeman, "Where's O'Connor?"

"He's out there, with the body," nodding toward the garage.

"All right, boys."

They went out the back door, crossed the porch, went down the wooden steps and along the brick path under a covered pergola. The snow that had fallen the night before had thrust its spearheads between the latticed sides, but the middle of the walk was clear. From the pergola to the stone garage was a matter of about fifteen yards and a number of tracks in the otherwise smooth snow led to the side door of the building, where there was a small porch with wooden Colonial benches on each side, under a little pent roof.

The four men crowded around the bed where Joseph Donaghy lay dead, lying back at an angle from the edge of the bed, with his head side-wise on the pillow. He wore no uniform, but had taken off his coat and vest of his civilian suit. The automatic gun was loosely held in his right hand. His feet rested on the floor, his arms were in a natural position. The bullet had been fired into his right temple.

The coroner's man picked up the ejected shell from a fold of the bed-clothes. He looked closely at the wound, then bent one of the fingers. He nodded to Harper. "Been dead six or seven hours."

Harper, satisfied with his scrutiny, gave the signal to the photographer and the police surgeon and they set about their routine procedure. Then the detective turned to the piece de resistance of this unexpected climax.

A chair, with Donaghy's feet still under it, was drawn up close to the bed. On the chair stood a portable typewriter and in it was a typed letter. The arrangement suggested that the chauffeur had finished typing, reached for his gun without getting up, pulled the trigger, and fallen sideways across the bed. Harper carefully released the letter and read it. This was the letter:

"I'm going to kick off in a minute because I couldn't stand going to jail, maybe to the chair. Tonight I tried to win enough jack to make a sure getaway but instead I dropped my roll. Harper is wise to me I know although he goes around hinting that he's got something on the boss."

"I'm not sorry I bumped off Harry Dorey but I'm real sorry I had to bump off the cop. I knew him and he was a good guy but I had no choice when he butted in."

I never had any luck after I got in with Harry. We started on easy jobs but when Harry wanted to try the dirty stuff I wanted to pull out. He got nasty and said he would turn me in if I didn't play ball. So I figured out a way to get rid of him.

Look in the old tire hanging on the wall of the garage and it will save a lot of explaining. My scheme worked out fine and my alibi held up and everything would have been all right if it hadn't been for the cop.

Nobody will shed a tear because Harry has gone, so I burned all his papers. Harper can figure out the rest of it for himself. Anyway I swore I'd never go to jail and I won't. I can't find anything to sign this with, but I guess that won't be necessary."

Harper read this startling confession through twice and put the letter aside thoughtfully. "Have you been down in the garage, O'Connor?"

"Yes, sir. It's just like it says in the letter—an old tire hangin' up on a big spike."

"All right, bring the tire up here." Presently the ruddy-faced policeman came back with the designated tire. O'Connor held it upright on the window-seat, while Harper's eager fingers dislodged the contents of the circular hiding-place.

The first, and bulkiest portion of the treasure trove proved to be a neatly-skinned length of a very thin, but exceptionally strong and durable rope. It was a brownish yellow in color and to each end of it a metal ring was bound. These rings had the circumference of a fifty-cent piece.

The Trojan track and field forces of Southern California, tutored by Dean Cromwell, have been saving their thunder this season for the National Collegiate at Los Angeles June 22-23. They expect to show the boys a good time in the biggest track meet thereabouts since the 1932 Olympics and then give Louisiana State, surprise winner of the 1933 N. C. A. A. championships, a friendly beating.

L. S. U., as well as Stanford, may have something to say about the final outcome but regardless of what Southern California does this year, the tip from the coast is that not even an earthquake will prevent the Trojans from sweeping all before them in 1935.

"If you hear a slight trembling in the distance next spring," writes Charlie Rinehart from San Francisco, "it will be the U. S. C. track team annihilating Stanford and California. They have a great dual meet team this year, without real outstanding stars, but next year they will have a flock of the latter, including Gillette, national interscholastic 440 champion at 48.2. Ross Bush, national 880 champion (1:54) who also won the 440 in the interscholastics at Chicago last year; Phil Cope, two-time winner of both hurdles at Chicago, 14.6 in the highs and 23.6 in the lows; also Staley, state hurdles champion, who is considered by Cromwell even better than Cope; Sefton, pole vaulter who has done 14 feet this year and Meadows, another man has cleared both U. S. C. freshmen.

And So On And So Forth

"They also will have Cornelius Johnson, twice A. A. U. champion in the high jump and a fellow by the name of Wolf, from Erasmus high in New York, a good shotput prospect. On top of all this, most of the varsity will return and of the state high school champions. Southern California will get over half of them, including one of the greatest hurdling prospects in the country, Roy Kirkpatrick. He has twice been timed in 14.5 for the highs and 23.3 in the lows. He is long and lanky like Percy Beard and Jack Keller, the Olympic stars.

Although our correspondent does not say so, it would also seem likely the Trojans will enroll Raymond Young of Ris high, Los Angeles. Young wiped out two of the great Bud Houser's schoolboy records in the California interscholastic championships by heaving the 12-pound shot a distance of 55 feet, 10 inches and then tossed the regular 16-pound ball 46 feet, 10 inches.

Arendtsville stepped out into a comfortable lead in the Adams county baseball league by winning a pair of games over the week-end, defeating East Berlin at Arendtsville Saturday, 13-3, and walloping Emmitsburg at Emmitsburg Sunday, 21-8.

York Springs found its winning streak snapped when Bendersville won a 5-4 decision in 10 innings on the latter's field. However, York Springs played the game under protest after an umpire's ruling on a ground rule.

Gettysburg and Fairfield split a double-header on the playground field Saturday afternoon. The first tilt going to Fairfield, 11-8, and the second to the locals, 8-7.

Poor pitching coupled with same ragged fielding a poor base running turned back the Oyer-managed clan in the first tilt. Fairfield rapped out nineteen hits in winning their tilt.

A homerun by Bud Knox in the last of the seventh of a seven-inning game gave the locals an even break. Knox's home run came with the score tied 7-all. The ball became lost in right field and he circled the bases for the winning run.

Emmitsburg upset Cashtown in both ends of a double-header at Emmitsburg Saturday, winning the opener, 4-0, and then squeezing out

Out of the Past

Happenings of days gone by as chronicled in The Star and Sentinel and The Gettysburg Times the files reveal.

ONE HUNDRED YEARS AGO
The Ladies' Fair: The following article, we are sorry to say, (for the credit of the press) appeared in the Compiler, of this borough, on Tuesday last:

"It is known to most of the citizens of the Borough, that a 'Ladies Fair' was held in this place, on the 4th of July last, the proceeds of which, it was said, were to be devoted to a benevolent purpose. That purpose, though not expressed, we believe, was generally understood to be the support of Missionaries—which induced many to contribute more liberally than they would otherwise have done. The amount collected was stated to have been $274—less than one fifth of which, it is said, was applied to the purposes intended, and it is now rumored that the balance is about to be appropriated to another object. We do not feel deeply interested in the matter; but the rumors amount to serious imputations upon the characters of those concerned, and would seem to require a specific account of the manner in which the funds were disposed of."

The gross calumny of the article scarcely deserves reply—which it should not have received from us, had it not been deemed necessary that the misinterpretations should be corrected.

We have been handed a statement by one of the ladies who had the direction of the Fair:

Money received for articles sold $274.92
Amount paid for materials 94.98

Leaving a clear profit of $180.00 Of this amount the sum of $100 was forwarded shortly after to the Rev. Mr. Wilson, a missionary amongst the Western Indians, supported by the Presbytery of Carlisle—leaving $80 of the Fair fund on hand. Out of this amount the sum of $19 has been appropriated by the Society, together with $31, earned by subsequent labor and sales, for the necessary repairs to a church in this borough, leaving a balance of $61 upon hand, ready for any purpose determined upon by the Society.

We have commenced today the speech of Mr. Webster upon the Protest of the President, and shall conclude it as soon as possible. We feel that we cannot lay before our readers any matter more deserving of record and perusal.—It is one of Mr. Webster's happiest efforts—clear, convincing, eloquent—displaying the truth, that, in the exposition of constitutional law, that gentleman has not his superior in our country. Let not its length deter any man from its perusal—it will really repay all the attention bestowed upon it.

SEVENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO

Mr. Samuel Herbst has sold his Farm, in Cumberland township, to Mr. Adam Butt—153 acres for $55,000, cash, and possession on the first of April next.—Mr. Herbst bought the farm from Mr. Jno. Butt two years since for $4,000.

The news of the first pitched battle between the French and Sardinians on one side, and Austrians on the other, in which some thousand lives were sacrificed, has sharpened the public appetite for further scenes of blood. The use of the Minie rifle and other destructive inventions of modern warfare must render every conflict more sanguinary than that which marked the annals of warfare a half century ago, and bring about a more speedy decision of the questions at issue.

The Independent Riflemen, of Arendtsville have elected the following officers:

Captain—Jacob Plank.
1st Lieut.—Jacob M. Bushey.
2nd Lieut.—Martin Witmore.

Married: On the 29th ult., by the Rev. B. A. Shorb, Mr. Henry Slonaker, to Miss Theresa Warner—both of Gettysburg.

At Mechanicsstown, on the 18th of May, by the Rev. William Hunt, Mr. Samuel J. Scott, to Miss Mary Jane Harman.

On the 9th inst., by the Rev. Jacob Ziegler, Mr. John Eiker, of Liberty township, to Miss Louisa Frock, of Hamiltonban township.

On the 2d inst., at the residence of John B. Group, near Whites-town, by the Rev. S. W. Seibert, Mr. George Watson, formerly of Boston, Massachusetts, to Miss Annie Nickle, of the former place.

On the 14th inst., Mr. George Patterson to Miss Ann M. L. Wolford—both of Freedom township.

On the 12th inst., by the Rev. P. Scheurer, Mr. Henry Yingling, of Carroll county, Md., to Mrs. Elizabeth Sellar, of this county.

Rev. Mr. Van Wyck: At a special session of the Presbytery of Carlisle, held at Shippensburg last week, the pastoral relations between the Presbyterian Congregation at Gettysburg and the Rev. C. P. Van Wyck, was dissolved, at the request of the latter. The reverend gentleman will leave us the latter part of this week, bearing with him the warm, sincere affection of many attached friends, who are ever ready to bear testimony to his pastoral faithfulness, his pure doctrinal exposition of the Word, and his gentlemanly, courteous deportment.

There was a musical concert at Hanover on Saturday last, by the singing societies of Gettysburg and Fairfield, under the direction of Prof. Harry. The cars in the morning and at noon, (an extra one at the last hour) were crowded to excess, and all returned in the evening, delighted with their excursion. Many of our citizens accompanied them. The affair passed off very handsomely.

George W. McClellan, George Swope, Samuel R. Russell, E. B. Bröhler and James A. Thompson were elected Managers of the Gettysburg Water Company for the ensuing year.

UNDEVIATING PURPOSE

ROARK BRADFORD, the writer who has written such fascinating tales of the negro, and from one of those stories Mr. Connelly took his play version of "Green Pastures," told me an interesting story of Richard B. Harrison, the negro who played the part of the Lord in this popular play.

Harrison was the son of two slaves who escaped to Canada before the Civil war. As he grew and developed in mind, he looked forward to the time when he would become an actor. He gave readings here and there. He preached some. But he kept in mind all the time that some day he would be an actor—and so, with this singleness of aim, he worked and waited.

The years rolled on, but this man never gave up believing that he would get his chance. It came when "Green Pastures" was cast and he was given the biggest role in the play—and played the biggest character that any man could play—that of the Lord!

Excellent as everyone in the cast of this play was, still all eyes were turned toward Harrison in his role as the Lord. He got his wish and appeared in one of the most successful plays of modern times—and probably he will be still playing the role for years to come, for it is a play that one can see again and again.

There is something very valuable that we all may learn from this negro—that singleness of aim, and a determination to be what one most wishes to be, usually is accomplished in the end.

We are the kind of character that is represented by the thoughts that run through our mind from year to year.

Stevenson determined to be a writer and carried a notebook with him everywhere he went and jotted down impressions that came to him. P. Hopkins Smith played with boats in a tub and loved the sea. He became not only a popular and interesting writer of novels but a builder of lighthouses.

Napoleon was forever studying maps—and became the greatest strategist of any warrior in history. Conrad mastered the moods of the sea in his mind, and then mastered the words that made it possible for him to write the greatest novels of the sea ever written.

He who has singleness of aim and purpose, and who goes ahead, deviating not from his set plan, is sure to be heard from, and acknowledged as a master along the line on which he has set his mind.

GOLF INVALIDS

He said to me at the starting tee:

"I'm terribly bad this year.
I've lost my drive, and a ninety-five is the best I have made out here."
So I gave him strokes and he up and pokes

A shot down the fairway true,
And I added his score when the game was o'er
For a neat little eighty-two.

Another one said: "I've an aching head

And scarcely an hour I've slept.
I should be in bed." Then he bowed his head

And a couple of tears he wept.
So strokes I gave his life to save
As we stood on the starting tee.
But he son got well, and I hate to tell

What sick man did to me.

Is an Honest man in the golfing clan

To be found, I should like to know.

"My putting's gone," said a whim-pering one

To me just a week ago.

"I am taking three on each green," vowed he.

So I fell for his palsied wrist
And his "can't putt at all!" but I don't recall

A ten-foot putt that he missed.

At the starting tee when they come to me

Their dismal tales to tell,
To the sick I'll say: "If with me you play,

I know you will son get well.
Have you lost the knack? You will get it back

Right here at the starting tee,
For they all get god, with the iron and wood.

The day that they play with me."

PATTERN 9054

If a woman is a bit larger than she should be, it is the hardest thing in the world to find a simple frock which she can wear successfully. When she is covered up with capes and revers she is all right, but she doesn't always want to be like that! Here is the simplest sort of frock with not a thing to break the silhouette—but it suits its wearer perfectly. The vest, the skirt yoke and the absence of belt attend to that—leaving you nothing to worry about except which makes a more becoming frock—print or monotone.

Pattern 9054 may be ordered only in sizes 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46. Size 36 requires 3 1/2 yards 39 inch fabric and 5/8 yard 36 inch lace.

Send fifteen cents in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for each Marian Martin pattern. Be sure to write plainly your name, address, the style number and size of each pattern.

A beautiful, complete collection of summer clothes is shown in the new summer edition of the Marian Martin pattern book. This book will help you plan a stunning vacation wardrobe. Clever beach ensembles, charming costumes for the gardener, style suggestions for the summer bride and her attendants and sun suits for children are among the special features. Send for your copy today. Price of book, fifteen cents, book and pattern together, twenty-five cents.

ADMIRERS BOW TO NEW HEAVYWEIGHT KING

Admirers swarm around the new world's heavyweight champion, Max Baer, in his dressing room just after he pounded out a technical knockout over Primo Carnera in New York. 9 Killed, 40 Wounded as Terrorists Attack ABC Parade in Havana

HAVANA, June 18 (AP)—Machine-gun bullets sprayed death into the ranks of 30,000 paraders of the A. B. C. political society Sunday as the climax of two days of guerrilla political warfare. Dead and wounded sprawled on the fashionable Prado boulevard, mowed down by bullets of radical gunmen who had sworn to break up the A B C fiesta as thousands of spectators lining the streets were thrown into a panic.

Supporters of Lieutenant Governor Ole H. Olson, Langer's running mate two years ago but now a leader of an opposition faction, awaited his arrival here in expectation that he would take immediate steps to advance his claims to the governorship on the ground that the verdict of guilty returned against Langer and four associates disqualified the governor from office.

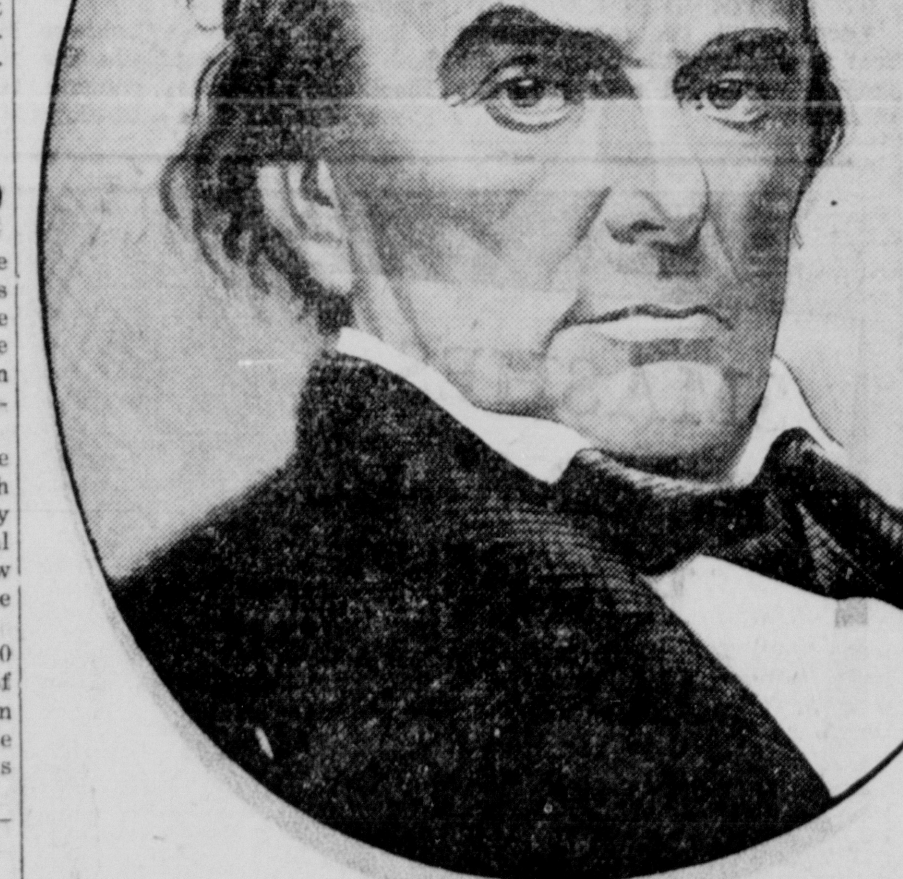

The felony conviction, one of the few in American history that has involved a state's chief officer, was the first the federal government had obtained against such an official on the particular charge, defrauding the United States through solicitation of federal employees for political contributions. The donations were obtained for the support of The Leader, a newspaper established a year ago to back the Langer regime.

Fleet in New York
Host to 1,400,000

New York, June 18 (AP)—The ninety ships of the United States fleet, which have held open house for 1,400,000 New Yorkers since the president reviewed them on May 31, will hoist their anchors today to put to sea again.

"Never before to my knowledge has the fleet been received with such enthusiasm and hospitality and cordiality," said Admiral Joseph Mason Reeves, the new commander-in-chief, as he made ready Sunday for the departure.

As he talked, the last 100,000 visitors were walking the decks of the gray ships lying in the Hudson and East rivers. Extra police were detailed to keep order on the docks among the enormous crowds.

To make a pure motor fuel—which gives high-powered, knockless, streamline performance in any car, whether new or old, and still sell it at the same price as ordinary gasolines. That is the Sun Oil Company's one all-important policy.

Our one and only motor fuel, Blue Sunoco, is outstanding in every gasoline quality—fast in acceleration, high in knockless power, smooth in performance, economical in mileage, uniform and pure—yet sells at regular gas price.

Since we make only one first-grade motor fuel—not two or three grades—great economies are effected in the refineries and warehouses, in the number of delivery trucks and gas pumps. That is why we are able to sell our one—and only—high-grade Blue Sunoco at regular gas price.

Wherefore I desire that ye faint not at my tribulations for you, which is your glory.

For this cause I bow my knees unto the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ,

Of whom the whole family in heaven and earth is named,

That he would grant you, according to the riches of his glory, to be strengthened with might by his Spirit in the inner man;

That Christ may dwell in your hearts by faith; that ye, being rooted and grounded in love,

May be able to comprehend with all saints what is the breadth, and length, and depth, and height;

And to know the love of Christ, which passeth knowledge, that ye might be filled with all the fullness of God.

Now unto him that is able to do exceeding abundantly above all that we ask or think, according to the power that worketh in us,

Unto him be glory in the church by Christ Jesus throughout all ages, world without end. Amen.

Hollywood

Sights and Sound

By ROBBIN COONS

Hollywood. — That other Beery boy, Noah, is making one of his comparatively infrequent screen appearances now, lending his basso-profundo notes to the music of "Caravan," the gypsy musical.

Noah, slightly older than Wallace and at one time more renowned, is spending most of his time nowadays in development of his commercial trout farm in the mountains near Saugus. Devoted to the enterprise though he is, he doesn't mind admitting that he'd like a chance to act more often.

"After you've spent 34 years of your life acting," he says, "with a huge, typically Beery smile, 'it's not easy to give it up.'"

But producers seem to have forgotten that he was and is an actor, he says. They think of him—when they think of him—as a singer. And they will not often meet his salary requirements when they can get new players from the stage who are willing to work for practically anything. "I have cut my salary, like everybody else," he says, "but I refuse to cut it any more—and it's still in four figures a week."

Sees "Old Guard" Back
He chuckles about that. Much as he wants to act, he thinks there is a limit to good nature, and the "old guard"—the actors who have proved they possess "screen personality"—one day will be recognized and given their chance again.

Noah's voice, which sinks to cavernous underground depths that chill the marrow of your bones, put him in demand for leading roles in the first film musical era. When the craze passed, Noah's career almost passed with it, he says. But he is singing again, and musicals are in again.

Slept in Parks
"But I'm like most actors in wanting to do whatever they're not doing," he says. "I was a dramatic actor on the stage and in pictures, and that's what I want to do now." When Noah was a stage-struck farm boy in New York, he used to sleep on park benches to save money for voice lessons—$25 for 20 minutes' instruction. But he abandoned vocal ambitions when he learned his voice, powerful and deep though it was, was too unusual to make the grade in grand opera. It was a sort of freak voice, so Noah began acting.

While Wallace, the "kid brother," was playing in musical comedies before turning screenward, Noah was doing heavy drama.

Now Wallace is the star of dramatic films, and Noah just sings.

GIRL'S DEATH PUZZLES POLICE

Vernon B. Shelters, Newark, N. J., automobile salesman, took his firm's stenographer for a motor ride and returned several hours later with her dead body in the seat beside him. Shelters, who was held on a manslaughter charge, told police he had no idea how the girl, Eleanor Coleman, 23 (inset), was killed. He said she left his car during the ride and he found her a few minutes later lying in the road. Police believe she was run over by an automobile. (Associated Press Photos)

Boston Keeps Cool Over Hanfstaengl

Boston, June 18 (AP)—Dr. Ernst Hanfstaengl, Adolf Hitler's aide scuffed at any idea of anti-Nazi demonstrations as he arrived Sunday to attend the Harvard commencement and the twenty-fifth reunion of his class.

Stretching out to his full height of 6 feet 3 inches as he alighted early Sunday morning from a New York train, the adviser to the German chancellor smiled broadly at the mention of a demonstration and said:

"I don't mind these little things. I think they are just trying to have a little fun with me."

Authorities were taking no chances, however, and a guard of twenty-nine policemen, a squad of state troopers and detectives were on hand to meet him, although there was not the slightest indication of a hostile demonstration.

Herr Hanfstaengl, looking like a well-groomed diplomat, wasn't bothered in the least by the fact that he just missed an anti-Nazi demonstration in New York.

"I had a great time in New York," he said. "I don't remember when I enjoyed myself more. There's nothing like it in Germany."

He said he wanted to make it clear he came purely on a visit as a member of the Harvard class of 1909.

Urges Ousting of Air Corps Head

Washington, June 18 (AP)—A nation for the immediate removal of Major-General Benjamin D. Foulois as chief of the army air corps was made Sunday to the secretary of war by a house investigating committee of eight members.

The report, which also will be presented to President Roosevelt this week, accused the general of dishonesty, gross misconduct, inefficiency, inaccuracy, uncalibr-ity, incompetence and mismanagement.

And after praising the "young men" who fly army planes under General Foulois' direction, the report concluded:

"We find it necessary to report that we are most firmly convinced from the evidence and records submitted that before any substantial progress in the rebuilding of the morale and material of the army air corps can be attained Major-General Benjamin D. Foulois must be relieved from his position as chief of the air corps."

"We unanimously recommend that the secretary of war take such action without delay."

San Francisco (AP)—Submerged shoals in San Francisco bay adjacent to Yerba Buena Island (Goat Island to all except the map makers) will be built up by dredging into a site for a world's fair in 1937. The fair will celebrate the completion of two bridges at a cost slightly in excess of $100,000,000.

Car Plunges Over Embankment; 3 Die

Bedford, June 18.—Two people were instantly killed and a third died in the Timmins hospital here Sunday morning as the result of a crash six miles south of Bedford on the Horsehoe trail. The dead are: Virginia Dodson, 20; Elsie Stake, 20, both of Everett, and Dr. R. H. Barton, 37, an Everett dentist.

Two of the three other occupants of the car, Eugene Clark and William Haley, both of Everett, are patients in the Timmins hospital here. Frank Williams, of Everett, driver of the machine, a sedan owned by Doctor Barton, escaped with slight bruises.

The car left the road and went over a small embankment, striking a tree sideways. It is believed that the car overturned, but it was found in an upright position.

Both Doctor Barton and Virginia Dodson were thrown through the top of the car. Elsie Stake, who died four hours later in the hospital, suffered a punctured lung.

Doctor Barton is survived by a wife and two children. All other passengers in the machine were unmarried.

Seek Bride Missing Since Last December

New York, June 18 (AP).—What has become of the brilliant woman attorney, Agnes Colonia Tuferson, who vanished last December a few days after she became the bride of a handsome Yugoslavian?

The disappearance of Miss Tuferson has developed into such a bizarre mystery that Sunday, five months after she last was seen, perplexed authorities have extended the inquiry to three continents—Europe, America and Asia.

She was last seen after a quiet marriage in New York to Ivan Ivanovitch Poderjaj, now under arrest in Vienna. He at first denied the marriage, but when confronted by evidence admitted it had taken place. The couple had met in Scotland, while Miss Tuferson was on a vacation.

Together they left her Granary Park apartment on December 20, and set out in a taxicab for a Hudson River pier. They were to have sailed for Europe on a honeymoon.

Kidnaper Caught

Joe Palmer, 32 (above), escaped Texas convict, was captured at St. Joseph, Mo., after he had abducted three men at Davenport, Ia., and held them prisoner for nearly 18 hours. The victims were Elmer Schueter, policeman; Al Schultze, baseball club official, and Dr. W. H. Fitch. (Associated Press Photo)

AUSTRIAN LEADERS 'UNDER THE SAME UMBRELLA'

When Chancellor Dollfuss (right) and Prince Starhemberg recently demonstrated their solidarity by appearing together at a patriotic meeting in Austria, they were snapped in this brotherly pose, "all under the same umbrella." A woman in the foreground held her parasol high to keep it from being damaged in the crush, giving an opening for the cameraman to catch the leaders as they were receiving flowers from a delegation of peasant women. About New York

BY GEORGE TUCKER

New York.—This sounds and is ooey-goofy, but what can you expect when the terrain is dotted with the combined personnel of the Atlantic and Pacific fleets?

Three deep-sea lads are ambling down Broadway taking in the sights. All at once they stumble over themselves coming to a halt before a Times Square theatre where one of the saltiest and rowdiest comedies of the year is having a run. The sign reads: "SAILOR BEWARE!"

They read this again and look askance at each other.

"Ha! A gyp joint!" one cries.

"Yessir—do you reckon the city marked it, so we'd know?"

"I guess they think we can't take care of ourselves," adds the third.

The three tars continue down Broadway.

SAILOR'S LUCK

The scene shifts now to a runway marked with green lights in a mid-town subway station. The girl is pert and sassy. Anger shaded with annoyance, burns in her eyes. But the sailor is not pert. He stands and looks at her with questioning, hurt eyes. "You're crazy," she blazes. "You should have told me you would be in. I can't and won't break a date at this time."

Without changing expression the sailor lad looks at her. Then very quietly, "All right, Sally."

He wheels and is away through the crowd before she can answer. Now surprise replaces anger in her eyes. Involuntarily she starts after him, half calls his name, but it is no use. He is gone. It is a shame the sailor cannot see the concern and the regret in Sally's face now. He would get a kick out of it.

Like Achilles, most sailors are vulnerable only in the heel. Or rather the socks. That's where they are carrying their coin in the big city. One young rover, snoozing in a subway, had his pocket picked twice in five minutes, but the thieves got only a headache for their trouble. Sleuths, seeing the sleeping tar, anticipated light-finger artists and ambushed both parties. Then they awakened the sailor.

"You better be careful," warned the detectives, explaining what had happened.

"Aw, don't worry about me," grinned the seaman. "To get mine they'll have to take off my shoes. That bump on the side of my foot looks like a bunion, but it ain't. It's bills."

GREENER GRASS

There are five or six proverbs and adages pointing out that the grass always looks greener on the other side of the fence—a theory which sailors and civilians demonstrate is true. Thousands of sailors, on board the great warships anchored in the Hudson, were breaking their necks to get on shore.

At the same time, thousands of civilians, impatiently waiting for the signal, were breaking their necks to get aboard one of the battleships.

You see, human nature is the same the world over—even in New York.

Add Harlesem: "I don't cop your five." This is another indication of the changing jargon. "Cop" means to comprehend and "five" is a line of talk or a train of thought. In other words, "I don't understand what you are talking about." I heard this used in a restaurant recently and the waiter obligingly explained it.

New York.—The song is ended, but the melody lingers on; the song being the late theatrical season and the melody the lads and lasses who go in for play-making and play-acting.

Tanned as a native, Sidney Howard is back from his Mediterranean cruise, but says he didn't even take the cover off his portable typewriter while away. In need of a rest after a grueling season in the big city, Howard went away to do

One Killed, 13 Hurt In Va. Explosion

Fredericksburg, Va., June 13 (AP).—Melvin Tyler, 21-year-old negro, was fatally injured, five other negroes are in a serious condition and six negroes and two white men are suffering cuts and bruises as the result of a terrific explosion which wrecked the water-proofing plant of the Sylvania Industrial corporation, manufacturers of transparent wrapping paper, about 9 a. m. Sunday.

The force of the explosion, which wrecked two buildings, was felt in Fredericksburg, two miles away. Twenty-two men were working in the plant at the time, only eight escaping uninjured.

Several of the men were virtually human torches as they rushed from the building, their clothing blazing.

Neither officials of the company nor members of the Fredericksburg fire department, called in to extinguish the fire, knew the cause of the explosion.

Company officials declined to be quoted on the damage done, but unofficial observers estimated it at upwards of $200,000.

"HOUSE OF CHEMISTRY" OPEN

Paris (AP).—Science, art and history are blended in the "House of Chemistry," a new international center for chemical research, in the rue Saint Dominique. It is housed in an old mansion which the government purchased from the Rochefoucauld family, owners since 1820.

however, won't take place until the first of the year.

Among others in our midst temporarily is the urbane and slightly graying French dramatist, H. R. Lenormand, who is dawdling here before shoving off for the south seas. Mr. Lenormand has seated himself comfortably in the lap of life in New York and spends the hours sipping cool draughts from a tall thin glass—orange juice, precisely.

He says there is nothing wrong with the world in spite of the depression bugaboo and that we all have much to be thankful for. This extreme note of optimism seems strange from one whose characters almost without exception move through a world bedeviled by Freudian complexes and death.

See how Golden Ply tire saves motorists' lives

...how it prevents great cause of blow-outs

"2 killed; 1 injured as blow-out throws car out of control"

TRAGIC headlines like this appeared in the newspapers nearly every day. Due to higher and higher speeds and smaller wheels, tires were running hotter and hotter. And heat causes blow-outs. The human toll was terrific. Something had to be done.

Goodrich engineers worked like beavers. For months. Finally they struck it. The amazing Life-Saver Golden Ply. An invention that withstood the strain of terrific high speeds. That made "the safest tire ever built" 3 times safer from blow-outs. This claim is not just shop talk. And here's proof!

Racing daredevils tested the Golden Ply out at breakneck speeds. Tested it on the world's fastest track. Not one blow-out. Similar tires without the Life-Saver Golden Ply failed at one-third the distance the Golden Ply Silvertowns were run. And what's more, the Golden Ply Silvertowns kept right on eating up the miles.

No extra cost!

Remember, you pay no price premium for this extra safety—this extra mileage. The new Goodrich Safety Silvertowns with the Life-Saver Golden Ply cost no more than other standard tires. So put a set on your car today.

This insignia indicates that the Goodrich Company complies fully with the tire manufacturing industry code.
